International early years conference on pregnancy, birth and early childhood

The dignity of the child

10 to 13 June 2020 at the Goetheanum

«I feel good in your eyes»

How do trust, warmth and autonomy arise in the interaction between adult and child?

We must not forget to look at the world with the eyes of a child.

Henri Matisse
We humans are born immature. The phase of life comprising pregnancy, birth and the first three years is very sensitive. Never again is the human being so much in need of protection and capable of being shaped as in this first period.

What does the child need right at the start of their life? Trust, being perceived and the continuous presence of a caregiver with empathy who also cushions their anxieties and creates free space for pleasure and play.

What do we companions of these children need so that a secure attachment and good basis for the whole of life can be created?

- If I have trust - I can give trust.
- Whence do I take my trust, my inner assurance?

How can we develop in such a way that the child feels perceived, secure and strengthened in our gaze? An important role is played here in the way we handle fear and anxiety. A healthy dose of fear and anxiety is part of life, they can wake us up and protect us. But in order to shape the future, to be able to give children the space for their development, fear and anxiety must not overwhelm and dominate us. How do we learn to handle fear and anxiety well and transform them?

Today's children will have difficult tasks to solve in their life and require the foundation of a start in life that sustainably strengthens them.

The intensive, mindful collaboration between the various professional groups who deal with this age group provides a great opportunity for the children and families. We want to give an impulse to such interdisciplinary collaboration with this conference which can be taken up in everyday activity in many different places.

We welcome everyone who wishes to work with us on these questions and invite you very warmly to the Goetheanum.

Workshops (the workshops build on one another)
Thursday 11.15–13.00 and 17.15–18.45 / Friday 11.15–13.00

1. Can you see me? The unborn child in prenatal care and prenatal diagnosis (DE/EN)
Ultrasound and prenatal diagnosis are part of managing pregnancy today. What effect do they have on parents, on their perception of the child, on attachment and on the unborn child themselves? Where are they helpful, where problematical? What specific inner attitude and abilities do we still have to develop to establish contact with the unborn child?
Angelika Maaser, Justine Büchler, Johanna Huenig

2. Medical and therapeutic support in pregnancy and birth. Experiences in integrative medicine with medical and painting therapy support (DE)
Keynote lecture/case study from outpatient and inpatient practice during pregnancy and with hyperemesis, premature labour, inviting and inducing birth. Practical exercises from painting therapy, painting light, darkness and colour.
Bernadette Gollmer, Anemone Maria Hedtstück

3. The free play of the child: how do we enable the small child to process experiences in a beneficial way? (DE)
For uninterrupted and free development to be enabled through play requires the carer to hold back their own impulses, create spaces of quiet and to observe attentively and empathetically what is happening in the life of the child and is waiting to be assimilated.
Bettina Mehrtens

4. How the child experiences themselves through the language of the adult (DE)
"It is not moralising, not sensible instructions which act on the child ... but what the adults do visibly in front of their eyes." The child learns to speak in that the adult speaks with them. In the workshop we will work on: "When do I speak? What do I say? How do I speak with the child?". With video observation and exercises.
Brigitte Huisinga

5. Being with the child – AND remaining with myself (DE/EN)
The well-proven exercises from vital eurythmy help us to be aware of this issue and work on it through movement.
Christiane Hagemann
Workshops

6. Difficult situations and conflicts: how do we recognise and support the feelings of the children? (DE)
What is required in terms of inner attitude, in terms of the nature of our presence, how does the observation of and knowledge about the children help to avoid or lessen difficulties? How can we show empathy without suffering with the children ourselves, how can the children "feel good in our eyes" and how do we thereby act positively on the whole group of children? Christiane Pfitzenmaier

7. The signature of birth – and its consequences (DE)
Each birth has its own specific character. Often it continues in the biography throughout life. What opportunities do I have to recognise and balance out "themes" in early intervention? How can adults make spaces available for this as the first and most important environment of the children? Can "birth" become a source of strength? In the workshop we will gather experiences of our own. Using video sequences, we can practise observing the opportunities for early intervention and the development of the child. For midwives, physicians, therapists, parents and early years teachers. Claudia Grah-Wittich, Julia Grebner

8. Spiritual orientation for adults accompanying small children (DE/EN)
How do we maintain the inner attitude to be worthy of the devotion of the small child and its imitation. Claudia McKeen, Bettina Lohn

9. Parent-child interaction, child and parent self-regulation: how can we support it in collaboration with the parents? (DE/PT)
Workshop with content-related contributions, role play and time for the interdisciplinary exchange of views. Christoph Meinecke, Cristina Meinecke

10. How do I shape my biography when I know that I am imitated in everything? (DE/EN)
How can I protect children from my weaknesses and projections? Michaela Glöckler

11. Support for families who have experienced fertilisation outside the mother's body (DE)
This workshop aims to give an overview of the techniques of assisted conception as well as attempting to consider such an intervention from our understanding of the human being. We will work on concepts for the therapeutic and educational work with these families. Open workshop for everyone who has an interest in this subject. Natalie Hurst
12. Sensory and attachment development: preventing anxiety (DE)
Every child is born with the ability to develop trust but also to shy away and become anxious. Successful attachment development is the best guarantee for the development of trust and to counter anxiety. An insight into the role of the body-oriented senses and their proper cultivation is of the greatest importance. We will work on content and with a practical orientation in this workshop.
Edmond Schoorel

13. Trust and wonder as an antidote for fear (EN)
The child enters this world with the utmost faith and overwhelming trust. And wonders about everything that they encounter in their surroundings through the senses. How can we, as the first environment of the child, develop trust and wonder in ourselves, to keep it for the child and protect them from disturbing influences? And how can we take care so that the child can maintain their trust and wonder in the world?
Eldbjørg Gjessing Paulsen, Nomathemba Tindlini

14. Early regulatory disorders, eating disorders and sleep disorders (DE)
Experiences from the work on a paediatric ward working with a holistic concept. For counsellors, therapists, parents and childcare workers.
Fatemeh Jacobi, Elfriede Kroker

Attachment and development are predisposed at the start of life particularly also with regard to feeding habits. Today breast feeding is neither a necessity nor taken for granted. Mothers decide for themselves how they feed their children. This freedom means that the question as to healthy nutrition remains open throughout life. Reflection and own experience enable the charting an independent path through the mass of nutrition guides (allergies, etc.). Here midwives, teachers, physicians, nursing counsellors and nutritionists are together called upon to make eating come alive as a generative source of strength for life. Tastings will sweeten the workshop.
Inge Heine, Susanne Wegner
16. What do young parents need? Presentation of study results and joint exchange of views (DE/EN)

The influence of pregnancy on the future health of the child is great. Although ever more medical and physiological details on this important part of life are becoming known (e.g. the influence of parental stress on hormone production and brain development in the child), relatively little research exists on the expectations, anxieties, hopes and questions of expectant or young parents. In this workshop we will together work on the consequences arising from the presented study results with regard to the interdisciplinary care of children after birth as well as in the first three years of life.

Jan Vagedes, Tido von Schoen-Angerer

17. Inclusion and acceptance: working with parents and colleagues, cultivating a gesture of openness and warmth (EN)

New parents, new teachers feel tender, vulnerable and overwhelmed with newly-found love and an immense sense of responsibility for the task they are taking up. How do we create environments that create opportunities for parents and colleagues that support both the adults and the children? The first and foremost skill that we must develop to do this work is observation – without it, we are unable to move forward. We will work together over the three classes to weave these subjects together in ways that will develop and enliven our capacities to observe and to become more sensitive to new ways of bringing support to new parents.

Heather Church, Magdalena Toran

18. The body forgets nothing – Bothmer® gymnastics and Spacial Dynamics® (DE)

All our experiences continue to exist in our complex body memory. Thus our body gives us sensory tools to learn to know and understand ourselves better. A particular role here is played by difficult experiences in which we could not obtain as children what we would have needed to come to terms with them properly. Such experiences can later on lead to insecurity, emotional one-sidedness and hidden anxieties – which also reveal themselves in our actions as teachers or therapists. How can we become more aware of these connections? In many movement and perception exercises we will investigate how we can ensure a new balance. Please bring clothing that does not inhibit movement and gym shoes.

Matthias Lander
Workshops

19. Singing and music making for and with small children (DE)
Children sense the moods of adults very accurately. Thus they sense their calmness, assurance, optimism, confidence, their emotional warmth when the latter sing and make music for them. Small children are very open to and take pleasure in everything that sounds. This workshop will concern itself with music, particularly pentatonic music, with songs for small children, musical instruments and our own voice.

Monica Bissegger

20. The transition between family and the early childhood setting (EN/DE)
How can an attachment-orientated familiarisation process succeed that meets the child’s insecurity and its curiosity? What helps to let trust grow and allays separation anxiety? As professionals, how do we foster the space within ourselves to develop inner qualities and emotional capacities to support the transitions for the young child? We will explore these questions through the lens of attachment research, artistic processes, professional exchange and reflection on our own practice.

Nicole Schreyeck, Mary G. Häuptle

21. Presencia: una envoltura que sostiene posibilitando confianza, seguridad y auto-nomia (ES/DE)
Un recorrido vivencial desde la comunicación en el los cuidados al despliegue de la motricidad autónoma y el juego en la primera infancia.

Presence: an envelope which supports and enables trust, security and autonomy
Using a variety of experiences, we will work on a path from communication in caring to unfolding movement and the joy in play in early childhood.

Silvina Fridman, Ignacia González Rena

22. Sensory experience and art as a source of strength (EN)
When you feel and know yourself, you can give confidence and warmth. Creative, courageous exercises for the joyful contact with your senses, and conversations about their relevance for the pedagogical everyday life.

Stefan Krauch, Hansjörg Palm
23. Building bridges between professionals and parents – supporting integration processes in the young child (EN/FR)
Since all of us know about the importance to create warm and supportive surroundings for young children – in our workshop we would like to concentrate on the essential part of lively relationships between caregivers and parents. We would like to explore together the possibilities and ways of creating a nourishing and warm atmosphere around the child. How can I build good contact with all the very different mothers and fathers? What is our common task?
Stefanie Allon, Lourdes Tomes

24. From man to father (DE)
Children are a gift from life to parents. At birth, it is not just a child that is born but lovers turn – into parents. Our understanding of parenthood today is fundamentally different from what it was even seventy or eighty years ago. In this workshop we will deal with the question of how the father in the newly born family can find their place and how good togetherness can come about.
Elke Steup

25. Cosmic origin and incarnation – modelling human embryonic development (DE)
Modelling human embryonic development can help us to understand this earliest phase of physical existence as the transition between the existence before conception and life on earth. Questions relating to our understanding of the human being, education and ethics can be considered on the basis of this artistically scientific basis of experience.
Jochen Brehme

26. When everything changes completely ... (DE)
What children in need of special care mean for parents and ourselves. Discussion forum for midwives, physicians, childcare workers and everyone else with an interest in the subject. Includes keynote presentations.
Christoph Stolzenburg

27. From movement to feeling from feeling to consciousness.
Eurythmy workshop (EN/DE)
In this artistic workshop we will investigate how we can develop true movement and perform a new social quality which serves as a basis for our work with the child.
Alexandru Bugnariu-Nicolae
Workshops

28. Einreibung for infants and young children (DE/SV)
Practical exercises for and demonstration of Einreibung. Here the four upper and lower senses are relevant in the communication with and care of the child.

Anette Beisswenger

29. Following and reflecting on the conference content for Korean colleagues (KO/DE)
Working on and deepening the conference theme on the basis of the lectures, focusing on practical implementation in everyday organisation.

Marie-Luise Compani

30. Acting intuitively out of perception of the child (DE)
Parents today are subject to a flood of information and promotions. How can we learn and teach reading the needs of children? Emmi Pikler always encouraged everyone to respect the skills of the child and thus strengthen their own initiative. Alongside aspects of the inner support for parents, we will also learn little gesture games and songs in the mood of the fifth by Wilma Ellersiek.

Birgit Krohmer

31. Being born into a world of media (DE)
How do media today change the circumstances for pregnancy, birth and early childhood? We are experiencing drastic changes in the relationship between parents and children through the use of new media. As early as the first wonderful moment after birth, this whole technical world intervenes through a "selfie with the newborn" or a flood of messages to "followers", not to mention the difficult to judge influences on the expectant mother and effects on the child before and after birth. How do perception, relationships and development (particularly sensory development!) change under these conditions? Observations, questions and perspectives on the protection of our unborn and born children will be considered in this workshop.
